EXPAND YOUR BUSINESS WITH GOVERNMENT CONTRACTING

By Lilach Assayag of PTAC - Jan 10, 2020

Selling your goods and services to the State government holds great potential for your business. Last year the State of California spent more than $10 billion on goods and services, including more than $3 billion with small businesses. State agencies buy everything from construction, HR and lab services to coffee beans and dog food. They even buy goats for grazing, and tattoo removal services.

Northern California Procurement Technical Assistance Center (Norcal PTAC) is a local nonprofit, situated on the campus of Humboldt State University and dedicated to helping small businesses build their government contracting capacity, free of charge. Free services include one-on-one counseling, training, and custom bid matching.

If you are ready to explore this potential revenue stream consider attending Norcal PTAC's upcoming FREE morning workshop on Wednesday, February 19, at the Humboldt Bay Aquatic Center (HBAC) to learn more about how to contract with California State Government. The workshop will cover the basics on government contracting, business certifications, and provide concrete steps for success in the government marketplace.

More information and registration at govcon-eureka.eventbrite.com
Apply for Norcal PTAC's free services at www.norcalptac.org

Mix It Up with PTAC & HBAC at the February Mixer!

Norcal PTAC and the Humboldt Bay Aquatic Center (HBAC) will be co-hosting the February Eureka Chamber Mixer. If you are unable to attend the workshop mentioned above, the event would be a great time to meet and chat with staff members of these nonprofit organizations.

The Mixer will take place at the Aquatic Center on February 20. You probably know the Aquatic Center for its great meeting and banquet room rentals, but did you know they also have a robust water activities program? As part of HSU's Center Activities department, the Aquatic Center holds paddling classes, boat rentals, and even offers youth summer camps.

Don't miss out on the chance to take a tour of the Aquatic Center facility, and hear more about expanding your business and increasing your bottom line with government contracting. See you at the Mixer!

New 2020 Labor Laws

Affecting California Employers

CALCHAMBER WHITE PAPER HIGHLIGHTS NEW 2020 LABOR LAWS

By CalChamber - December 6, 2019

There are a few new and significant 2020 California employment laws that employers need to be aware of, as they may affect daily business operations, policies and employees.

Of the 2,625 bills introduced in the Legislature this year, 1,042 bills reached Governor Gavin Newsom's desk. He signed 870 and vetoed 172—and many of those signed will affect California employers.

Some bills made significant changes to California employment law, such as the much-publicized independent contractor bill, AB 5. Others made small but important changes of which employers must be aware, such as those changing the mandatory harassment prevention training deadlines.

The Governor vetoed several California Chamber of Commerce-opposed bills, including AB 589, which would have created overly burdensome requirements for employers to post and provide employees with a "Worker's Bill of Rights," among other things.

The Governor also vetoed SB 218, which would have amended the Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) to allow local governments in Los Angeles County to enact their own anti-discrimination ordinances similar to the FEHA, creating uncertainty, inconsistency and confusion regarding the FEHA's application and interpretation.

The white paper summarizes new laws in:

- recruiting and hiring;
- discrimination, harassment and retaliation protections;
- leaves of absence and benefits;
- workplace safety;
- arbitration;
- privacy; and
- wage and hour.

Unless otherwise noted within the white paper, the new laws take effect on January 1, 2020.
